

KS&R's DIGITAL DISPATCH

Week Ending: March 01, 2019

Top Stories This Week

Appeals Court Backs AT&T Acquisition Of Time Warner

An appeals court has rejected the Justice Department's bid to overturn a ruling that cleared the way for AT&T's acquisition of Time Warner. (cnn.com)

Google's Pixel Lite Just Passed Through The FCC

Google is getting ready to release its upcoming budget phone any day now, judging from a series of new filings that surfaced Monday morning: The company filed a number of applications with the FCC for a new smartphone that very likely the much-rumored Pixel Lite. (variety.com)

Products & Services

Evan Spiegel Says Snapchat's New Android App, A Key To Future User Growth, Will Be Finished By The End Of The Year

Snap CEO Evan Spiegel on Monday said Snapchat's redesigned Android app will be rolled out to all users by the end of 2019. (cnbc.com)

Microsoft Unveils The \$3,500 HoloLens 2 AR Headset Built For Comfort And Immersion

Microsoft has officially unveiled the second incarnation of its HoloLens mixed reality headset. (venturebeat.com)

Emerging Technology

5G Can Make Digital Humans Look Real And Turn Real People Into Holograms

Holograms. Emotive, life-like digital human beings. Washing machine repairs directed from miles away. (usatoday.com)

Mergers, Acquisitions, & Partnerships

IBM And VW's SEAT Outline AI-Powered Mobility App For Urban Travelers

IBM Corp. has teamed up with SEAT S.A., a subsidiary of the Volkswagen Group, on a new "Mobility Advisor" application to help people make more informed decisions about their daily transportation options. (siliconangle.com)

Mastercard, Amazon And Accenture Partner To Establish Transparent Blockchain Supply Chain

Today Accenture introduced a "circular supply chain" allowing consumers to make more sustainable choices about what they buy. (forbes.com)

Industry Reports

Cord Cutting Added 2.5 Million American Households In 2018

Cord cutting had a great year in 2018, with over 2.5 million new American households joining the movement. (cordcutternews.com)